STEVE BLANCE

Writer & Performer

Steve has credits in radio, television and film. He first began working in TV while still in college, shuttling from classes to an uptown studio, for the production of Shalom Corner, a Jewish children's educational series.

After graduating, he wrote comedy for morning radio and penned several commercial jingles, including spots for Tootsie Rolls and WOR radio. Heading west, Steve struck gold with the action comedy series GLOW - Gorgeous Ladies of Wrestling. He served as head writer and appeared as the beleaguered referee. The show was a hit in the U.S. and attracted a worldwide following. It spawned a magazine, DVD collection and two pay-per-view specials. A 2012 award-winning documentary on GLOW featuring Steve as the storyteller was so well received by audiences, Netflix launched its own version of the show.

Steve has also done voiceovers, performed onstage at the Duplex and Comic Strip, and written material for five children's joke books.
